Useful for sharing pictures

Creating a Yahoo Account

After going to the URL above you will need to log into a Yahoo Account or create an account by clicking on Create Your Account (shown at right). Creating an account with Yahoo is free.

Overview of Flickr

Once you've logged in you will be presented with a screen like the screenshot shown below. This is the basic interface for your Flickr files. Here you can upload pictures, organize them into sets, share them with your contacts and more. Follow the steps to Personalize your profile, Upload your first photos and learn about contacts and sharing.

The screenshot shows the Flickr homepage for a user named tom corcoran. The top navigation bar includes links for Home, You, Organize, Contacts, Groups, and Explore. Below the navigation bar, there is a profile section for tom corcoran with a bio: "Now you know how to greet people in Australian!". A "Here's how to get started:" section lists three steps: 1. Personalize your profile, 2. Upload your first photos, and 3. Find your friends on Flickr. Below this, there is a "Your Photostream" section with a "Recent Uploads" tab and a message: "You haven't uploaded any photos yet. Why not upload your first photo now?". Finally, there is a "Your Contacts" section with a message: "Flickr is more fun when your friends use it too! Try a search or invite people so you can keep up with their latest photos."

All about You

The second menu option you see is You. Here you can view your Photostream (your collection of photos), view individual sets of photos, your whole archive, tags you've added to photos, your map (if you have tagged your photos with locations), your favorites and stats about the activity.

Organize

The Organize menu lets you view all content, most recent uploads and organize your sets and your map.

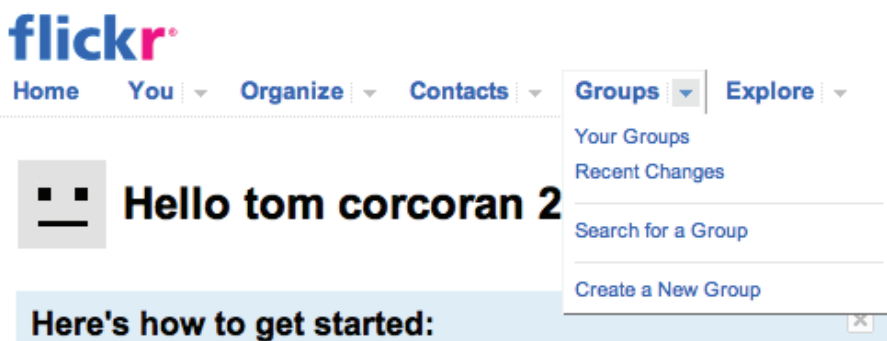

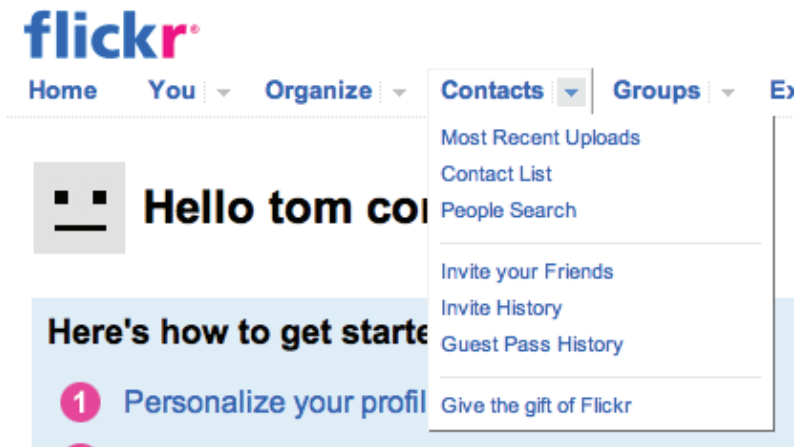

Contacts

Contacts allows you to keep an address book up to date, and invite friends to view your photos.

Groups

Groups are another way to organize your contacts. Here you can search for and create new groups you can invite to see your photos.

Explore

The Explore section of Flickr allows you to search for public images other people have uploaded into the Flickr service. Here you can find unique or interesting pictures that other users have uploaded in the last 7 days, search by popular tags, view images by using the calendar, most recent uploads and more.

Upload to Flickr

After you have logged into your account you can begin to upload images into Flickr. From the Home page choose Upload Your First Photos. You will be taken to a screen like the one on page 4. Click Choose photos and videos and you will be presented with the dialog box allowing you to navigate to the location on your computer that you have photos stored and either choose one file at a time and click open or hold the Control Key (Ctrl) on the keyboard down and choose several files to upload and click open. (see page 4 for screenshot)

From the next screen you can choose privacy options for the images. Either make your images private allowing only your friends and/or family to view the photos or you can make them public so anyone on flickr can view your photos. (see page 5 for screenshot)

After choosing the privacy setting click upload photos and videos and your photos will upload into your Flickr account. (see page 6 for screenshot)

After the photos are uploaded you can add a title, description, tags and add them to sets. Tags are a way to categorize your photos and sets are groupings of photos (similar to a folder). Once this is finished click Save and you will be taken to your photostream. (see page 6 for screenshot)

Editing Photos

Once an image is uploaded you can edit the image by cropping it, rotating the images, deleting the image or ordering prints of the images. Navigate to your Photostream and choose a picture you'd like to edit by clicking on the photo.

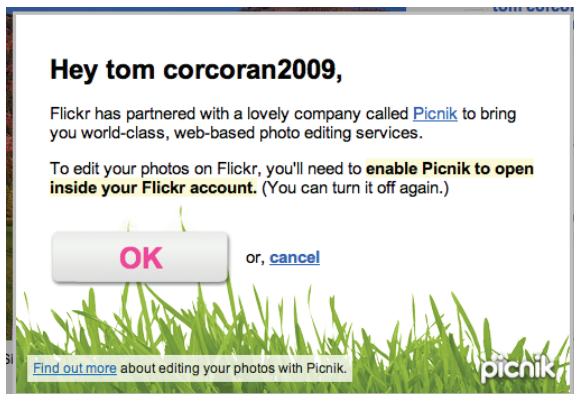

Flickr uses a separate service called Picnik to perform the photo editing. When you click on edit photo you will be prompted to enable Picnik to perform the editing on your photos. Click ok and the photo editing service will load and begin in the browser. (screenshot shown below)

Sharing Photos

After you've uploaded your photos you can begin to share them. Just go to the Contacts page and click on Invite People.

Fill out the form with email addresses and Full Names of your invites. Choose whether the person is a friend or family. Here you can edit the invitation message that they will see and then click send. Your email will be sent out to those people and they will be given access to view your photos after they create a free yahoo account to log into the Flickr service.

Send an invite to Flickr

We'll send each person you list below an email with a link to Flickr. If they are not interested, they can safely ignore the invitation.

See past invites on your invite history page.

First, enter your friends' info
